

Seeing the Sacred in the Ordinary

Exodus 3:1-5

Too often in our way of seeing things, something is either sacred or ordinary/commonplace. Looked at that way, most of us live most of our lives in “ordinary time.” There are a handful of special, mountaintop experiences, but most of life is mainly routine.

Moses, in our Scripture passage, was living out an ordinary day, tending sheep. But then he came upon a burning bush. It became and extraordinary day; he was in a sacred place, on holy ground, in the presence of God.

A sure sign of maturing faith is when we begin to see the sacred presence of God in the most ordinary moments and places. When the gap between the sacred and the ordinary begins to disappear.

God is present in the most ordinary of life’s moments and places. But how often do we miss Him? How often have we not seen the sacred in the ordinary?

◆.....◆
What is God saying to me?

What am I going to do about it?

Seeing the Sacred in the Ordinary

Exodus 3:1-5

Too often in our way of seeing things, something is either sacred or ordinary/commonplace. Looked at that way, most of us live most of our lives in “ordinary time.” There are a handful of special, mountaintop experiences, but most of life is mainly routine.

Moses, in our Scripture passage, was living out an ordinary day, tending sheep. But then he came upon a burning bush. It became and extraordinary day; he was in a sacred place, on holy ground, in the presence of God.

A sure sign of maturing faith is when we begin to see the sacred presence of God in the most ordinary moments and places. When the gap between the sacred and the ordinary begins to disappear.

God is present in the most ordinary of life’s moments and places. But how often do we miss Him? How often have we not seen the sacred in the ordinary?

◆.....◆
What is God saying to me?

What am I going to do about it?